

Field Trip Acceptance Form

Written by Debbie Carter as a Eulogy for Janet Weigand

This field trip is the trip of a life-time - - the last one you will make.
It is a beautiful place called Heaven, prepared by God, with labor of love.

Don't be concerned with the date—it is unknown.

No one needs to worry about the cost -- admission was paid in full when you made your reservation
by Jesus Christ, with His blood.

Don't bother to pack. You can't take a thing. On this field trip, it is what you leave behind that counts. I have gone ahead of you, but I left the love for my family and friends, along with my strength behind. I don't think that I could have given more, but you know that I would have tried.

I hope for once on this field trip destination (Heaven), we have crowded conditions, but looking around up here, there will always be room for more.

Please make your reservation ahead of time for this ultimate destination. Remember it is by choice, but don't dwell on your departure date, just keep in mind, you might leave at any time. I have found that for many here, it was by surprise.

I'll see some of you sooner; I hope to see you all. Don't wish your life away. There is so much to do. Make a mark for yourself, live like there is no tomorrow, love each other, and always do your best. If any students hear, remember to study for all of those tests.

Remember, this destination is by choice. I hope no one rejects this opportunity so free.

You need not sign this field trip form. When you accepted your reservation, God signed your name .
I hope you choose to make this ultimate field trip destination Heaven -- the choice is yours, but one day, I hope I see you here.

Please don't rush; make the world a better place. Don't ever try to take yourself; let nature take its course. Time goes fast. Please don't waste a day.
